The first issue was well received. Larry, Patsy and Fred appreciate each of you that have called and have written in support of our efforts. Nothing inspires us to work hard to turn out a quality product than to hear words of praise from those we share the effort with. As we stated in the first issue, our goal is to produce a readable and enjoyable paper that will cause our readers to think about their heritage and generate interest among the younger set, as well as those of us who are, shall we say "slightly older", about those who came before us and the legacy they have left us. We believe, if they could see us today, they would be proud of our accomplishments as we are proud of theirs. Thank you all for your kind and generous words of support. If you would care to submit an article or know of someone that would, please let us know. Also give us your thoughts about improving the paper. We also need your help with announcements, death notices, weddings and any other notes of general interest. A special thank you to Pam McCaleb Parker, Fred McCaleb and Patsy Johnson for their help in putting together the mailing list. If you know of anyone that would care to receive the paper, please let us know.

Remember the date for the McCaleb reunion. It will be at the New River Church of Christ building on Sunday, June 2, 2002. Fix a bite or buy some KFC and come meet your kin. Everyone can surely find an hour or two in each year to meet with and renew acquaintances with those who share their heritage.

In this issue we continue profiling the descendants of John and Zilpha Hollingsworth and Hugh and Elizabeth McCaleb. We include the children of John and his first wife, "Tildy". The "What If" column is from the preface to my family history book. It is a summary of the early history of many of the families that will be the focus of this publication. The "Way Back When" column is a short biographical sketch of Thomas and Jane Galloway and their family and how it relates to those of us descended from them and many of the largest families in the area. The "Related Families" column by Foy Anthony, deals with the family of William Pickens Anthony and Mary "Polly" Logan. Polly's mother was Jane "Jenny" McCaleb, the oldest child of Hugh and Elizabeth McCaleb. Fred has an article about Leah Catherine McCollum. We have an announcement about the Tucker Reunion and the dedication of the restoration of the Tucker-Griggs Cemetery. We include a report, by Martha Ann McCaleb on the "Oldest McCaleb" along with a picture. I will take a few "Random Shots" and "Uncle Isaac" weighs in with his gems of wisdom. We have included a picture section as a special addition. We will make it a regular feature if you, the readers, will cooperate and send us your pictures to copy. A special thank you to Aubrine Nichols for allowing us to copy some of his pictures. We understand the value you place on family photos and assure you we will take care of them and return them to you promptly. Remember, we can't print the pictures if we don't have them..... Hope you enjoy issue #2.....lew

The Ties That Bind

Jane "Jennie" McCaleb, Hugh and Elizabeth's oldest child, was born ca. 1803, probably in Stokes County, North Carolina. She married Robert Logan in Morgan County, Alabama on 11/11/1822. They lived for a time in Morgan County and moved to Fayette County where they bought a good-sized farm, not far from her parents. Sometime later they sold the Fayette County property and moved to Marion County to a farm just west of present day Winfield where they spent the rest of their lives. Theirs is an interesting story, which will be told, in a later issue. Robert and Jane had 15 children the children are: (1) Daniel Lapsley, born 9/27/1823, married Mary Alice Moss, 2. married Martha Ann Elizabeth Musgrove (2) Alexander B., born 2/1825, married Virginia Jane Beasley, (3) John Calvin, born 1827, married Margareite Pate, (4) Mary "Polly", born 2/10/1829, married William Pickens Anthony, (5) Andrew W., born 12/5/1831, married Catherine Cothorn, (6) Elizabeth, born 10/9/1833, married Jeremiah Hunt, (7) James M., born 1835, unmarried, died in the Civil War 12/24/1862, (8) Margaret Barbara Jane, born 6/5/1837, married Samuel Adkins, (9) Sarah, born 1838, never married, died in 1893 (10), Robert Henry, born 6/22/1840, married Mary Elizabeth Matthews (11) Hugh White, born 4/15/1844, married Narcissa Cora Morris (sister to "Nick" Morris), (12) Vernetta, born 9/17/1845, married Joseph Ellis Green, (13) Harm David, born 5/6/1847, married Elizabeth Pratt, (14) Martha Jane, born 3/22/1849, married James O. King, (15) Sally, born 1850.

John A. McCaleb was the second child of Hugh and Elizabeth. He was born in 1805 probably in Stokes County North Carolina. He married Mary Ann Hackworth in Morgan County, Alabama on 12/24/1844. They moved with John's family to Fayette County where John farmed and became a prominent preacher in the Church of Christ. Many are the records of marriages performed by him in the county in the mid 1800's. He and Mary Ann moved to Texas in the early 1870's and returned shortly thereafter to Alabama and Fayette County. Within a few short years, they moved back to Texas and lived there until their deaths. Mary Ann was the daughter of Nicodemus Hackworth, a prominent Primitive Baptist preacher in Morgan County, Alabama, who was converted, probably by John and Mary Ann, to the Church of Christ. (Nicodemus was the grandfather of another prominent Fayette Countian, "Nick" Morris whose diary has been such a great help to me and others in our research and who is Patsy's great grandfather). John and Mary Ann had the following children. (1) Martha "Addie", born 1845, married a Henson, (2) Phoebe Elizabeth, born 5/10/1848, married Jesse P. Hutton, (3) Mary Jane, born 1850, married Riley Huffman, (Riley was a Texas Ranger) (4) Jo Ann, born 10/18/ 1855, married William Dunigan Howard Lavinia McCaleb was the second daughter and third child of Hugh and Elizabeth. She was born ca. 1806, probably in Stokes County, North Carolina and moved with the family to Morgan County, Alabama where she married David Gibson on 11/24/1822. I have not been able to trace her family. Little is known about them or where they may have settled. If any of our readers has any information on this or any of the families, please share with us.

What If.....

MY GENEALOGY

Genealogy is a fascinating subject. It is a study of history, in a sense, as one traces his ancestors and their involvement in the great and not so great historical events of their time. It is also the story of their struggles for a better life for their families and in many instances their very survival. While many of the day to day details of one's ancestors' lives can only be imagined, one can find some evidence of the hardships they endured. The many deaths of children and mothers in childbirth are to be found most often and in every generation. One can only guess the sorrow and heartbreak they must have endured. The average life span of an adult in the 1700's and early 1800's was only thirty-five to forty years of age. This is partly due to the hard life many had to endure. It is a study of immigration to the new world. Some came to escape persecution, religious and political, others simply to find a better life. One can only imagine the long journey aboard ship, weeks and even months, and the thrill and apprehension they must have experienced upon arrival in this wild and new country. Clearly they were brought here for a chance of a new life and the many opportunities that were open to them. It is an accounting of the terrible cost of war as the young nation struggled to free itself from the tyranny of the old world in the War of Revolution and again in the war against these same British in the War of 1812. It is a study of extreme sadness at the terrible cost of the Civil War when brother was pitted against brother and in many cases father against son. It is a story of happiness and the thrill of success as families grew and prospered and children moved west to settle new lands and territories. For those of us in this present generation, it is a story of our heritage and the pride we must feel as we look back at our ancestors and their accomplishments as well as their failures.

Completing one's family tree is similar to hunting for the pieces to a giant jigsaw puzzle. Sometimes finding one piece can open up a whole new line of family members. It can also be an exercise in futility as many searches are fruitless and more often than not, one simply runs into a dead end. Early records oftentimes are vague or simply do not exist. With all the frustrations, it has been one of the most enjoyable experiences of my life. Being a history "Buff," I was especially thrilled to find that my early ancestors had a small role in the establishment of this great country. Finding that an early ancestor, Valentine Hollingsworth, was a close associate and friend of the great William Penn was exciting. Valentine came to this country in the great Quaker immigration of the late 1600's. The Quaker traditions were influential in several sides of my early ancestors. There is substantial evidence that the early Whiteheads and Anthonys were members of this sect. The heartwarming account of another ancestor, Thomas Rutherford, and his pursuit of the love of his life, Jean Murdoch, all the way from Ireland to Pennsylvania is truly a great love story. The knowledge that many of my ancestors fought the British in the Revolutionary War and were a part of this greatest of all events is a patriotic thrill. The Kuykendalls were some of the earliest ancestors to make it to this new world, settling in what is today upstate New York. The story of Abraham Kuykendall and the "Dutchman's Gold" gives an ironic twist to the term greed. William Whitehead, a Colonel in the British Army producing several sons who fought for the Americans in the war for independence from the British gives me great pride. Another ancestor, young Patrick Galloway, left his young wife

Betsey and three small children, to do battle against the British at Quebec and never returned. Betsey was widowed three times before her fiftieth birthday. John Hollingsworth's volunteering for service in the War of 1812 against these same British is another story worth knowing. The story of Nancey Smith Whitehead, my great-great-grandmother and her suit against her husband, Archibald Whitehead and an unethical lawyer in Tuscaloosa, in a case tried before the Alabama Supreme Court, shows a spirit of independence unheard of in her day. She was a "Women's Libber" 150 years before it became fashionable. The story of young Matthias Gottlieb "Caleb" Ehl, my great-grandfather, coming to America alone, a young lad of fourteen, is a stirring one indeed. One can only imagine what must have gone through his young mind as he arrived in a strange land, unable to speak the language, and not knowing anyone.

The discovery of my McCaleb ancestors' involvement in the "Restoration Movement" and their commitment to the establishment of Churches of Christ in Northwest Alabama is something that I take special pride in knowing. As I read the reports submitted by my great-great grandfather, Andrew McCaleb and his brother John, to the Millennial Harbinger, The Christian Messenger and the Gospel Advocate in the early and mid 1800's, I began to realize what an important role they played. The evidence is clear today as the many Churches of Christ in Northwest Alabama that they had a direct or indirect hand in starting will attest. There are many others that I also take pride in knowing about- the McMinn's, Bealls, Carters, Normans, Sprinkles, Anthonys and McCollums to name a few.

The Civil War and its aftermath is a favorite study of mine in American history. I was not aware of any of my family's involvement until I became interested in genealogy. I was taken aback, to say the least, when I discovered that my great grand father, Drury Whitehead and several of his kinsman fought for the "hated Yankees." Being a southerner "born and bred," I could not understand why he could have possibly done this dastardly deed. After much study of the circumstances and politics involved, I think I understand more clearly today. Drury's grandfathers and at least one of his great-grandfathers, as well as several uncles, had fought in the American Revolution. They had fought against the British for the independence of this country. He and most of the populace of Northwest Alabama were probably Jacksonian democrats. Andrew Jackson was adamantly opposed to secession. He had opened this country to these followers by defeating the Indians at the battle of Horseshoe Bend. Most held an intense loyalty to him and to his memory. Drew owned no slaves. He simply wanted to be left alone and stay out of the war. Alas, it was not to be. Wesley Thompson in his book "Tories of The Hills" makes the following observation: "When the Confederacy and people of that section organized the Home-Guards and the Partisan Rangers to hunt them down and make them go, there followed one of the bloodiest struggles of guerrilla-warfare ever fought on American soil." Drew and his associates were in the thick of it. As the war dragged on, he was forced by circumstances to make a stand. His brother, Archibald, Jr., was probably wounded and later died from these wounds, more than likely because of his opposition to the war. His oldest daughter's future father in law, a neighbor, was ruthlessly murdered for his opposition to the war. He was found by members of his family, nailed to a tree with a railroad spike through the throat. Daniel Smith, possibly an uncle, was savagely attacked for his opposition. Smith was hanged, but survived and gave three sons to the cause. Drew himself was hunted by the hated "Homeguard" and hid in a hollow log on one occasion to escape capture, according to family legend.. Friends and neighbors were arrested and some were imprisoned for their stand. Finally, Drew made the decision to join the First Alabama Cavalry, USA. He served with honor and was captured at least once and maybe twice, escaping and making his way back to his unit each time. He survived the war and lived the rest of his life at home on his farm in Fayette County, Alabama. An understanding of the times leads one to strongly believe that he probably suffered strong reprisals after the war from his neighbors and former friends, as many others surely did also. I don't know Drew's reasons for his actions, but I have to believe they were based on principle. Whatever the reason, I am proud to be his great-grandson and proud that he made a stand that I am sure he thought was the right thing to do at the time.

This study of the family's involvement in the Civil War provided many surprises. Of the many relatives that fought in the war from this area, they were fairly equally divided as to the side they fought on. Thomas Galloway, my great-great-great grandfather, whose own father had died at the battle of Quebec in the Revolutionary War, had eighteen grandsons and sons-in-law that joined the service. Their loyalties were evenly divided between the North and South. Andrew McCaleb, whose great-grandfather had fought in the war for independence also, had three brothers that fought for the Confederacy. He remained loyal to the Union and his oldest son, John Tyler McCaleb, served through the war in the Union Army. John Hollingsworth sent five sons to the Confederate Army. Two never came back. Daniel Ford had a son, his namesake Daniel Newton Ford, killed at Ft. Donelson as well as a grandson, John Berry Ford. Both were fighting for the Southern cause. William Anthony had a son killed at Fredricksburg and a brother-in-law also killed. Both were in the Confederate Army. Caleb Ehl had his home and business burned by the Union Army. Truly a sad part of American history! All of these men lived in the same community and were neighbors and friends as well as ancestors of mine. Thankfully, for the most part they were able to put the horror and the bitter feelings behind them, renew their friendships and go on with their lives. Their lives are truly an inspiration.

America is unique in that we are all descended from immigrants. When I think about my lineage, I realize that I am of Dutch, German, English, Irish, Scotch-Irish, and Scotch descent with possibly a touch of Native-American thrown in for good measure. Some combination!

This is not a complete work. There is still much to do. For instance, I have not been able to find Caleb Ehl's relatives in Germany. I am still lacking data on all my Ford relatives and their exact relationship to each other. I continue to search for the "proof" of the relationship of the early Whiteheads. Some information on my Sprinkle line is missing. The earliest Anthonys have been particularly difficult to find.. It has been most difficult to find all my Smith relatives as the Smith name is the most common in the country. There are always the cousins that moved away and have never been heard from again. Of course the current generation is sometimes the hardest to find as they move about the country and new ones are being born. Currently I have located and verified more than 23,000 relatives. I have met and contacted many, many cousins that a few short years ago I did not know. It has been a labor of love and I plan to continue.....lew

Random Shots.....

Below are the words to one of the most beautiful songs of early Americana, "CARRY ME BACK TO OLD VIRGINNY." Until recently the official state song of Virginia.

*Carry me back to old Virginny,
There's where the cotton and the corn and taters grow,
There's where the birds warble sweet in the springtime,
There's where the old darkey's heart am long'd to go.
There's were I labored so hard for old Massa,
day after day in the field of yellow corn,
No place on earth do I love more sincerely.
Than old Virginny, the state where I was born.*

CHORUS

*Carry me back to old Virginny,
There's where the cotton and the corn and taters grow,
There's where the birds warble sweet in the springtime,
There's where the old darkey's heart am long'd to go.*

*Carry me back to old Virginny,
There let me live till I wither and decay,
Long by the old Dismal Swamp have I wandered,
There's where this old darkey's life will pass away.
Masa and Missis have long gone before me, Soon we will meet on that bright and golden shore,
There we'll be happy and free from all sorrow,
There's where we'll meet and never part no more.*

The last thing we want to do is use this paper to promote our particular brand of politics. However, all who receive this paper are Southerners. We are under attack, folks! The song above is an old American classic. It was written by a black man, James Bland. The words tell of his love for his home. It is not a racist song. If anything, it promotes racial harmony as he talks about his love for his masa and misses. What could be wrong with that? The Virginia Legislature recently voted to quit using it as the Virginia state song because some of the words were "offensive" to some groups. When will it end? When all of the monuments at every courthouse across the south are taken down. When any mention of our southern heritage will be frowned upon. When will it end? When "My Old Kentucky Home" is done away with or any of a number of American classics by Stephen Foster. When the playing of "Dixie" is banned. When will it end? When every vestige of our southern way of life is destroyed. When will it end? I am reminded of the words of the old Negro spiritual "How long, How long". It has been one hundred and thirty six years since Lee surrendered at Appomattox. When will it end? It will end when we have the courage to stand up against the politicians and the special interests and say, "Enough is Enough."..We aint't going to take it anymore!...If we don't, we will have nothing of our heritage to leave to succeeding generations. That will be a shame. No! That will be a crime.....lew

More Way Back When

Thomas & Jane (Jean) Galloway

Thomas Galloway was born in Paxtang Township, Pennsylvania on 2/18/1773. He was the son of Patrick Galloway and Elizabeth "Betsy" Rutherford. His father, Patrick, was killed at the battle of Quebec in the Revolutionary war. So far as I know, Patrick was the only one of our ancestors that was killed in the war for independence. Young Thomas moved with his Mother, a brother, John and his sister, Jean, to Iredell Co., North Carolina. There he met Jane Beall, daughter of David Beall and Rachel O'Dell. Jane was descended from the Beall family of Maryland. She was the ggggranddaughter of Ninian Beall. Ninian came to America in 1652. He built the Dunbarton plantation in what is today the Georgetown section of Washington, D.C. This family was one of the prominent families of Maryland and from that State's beginnings as a colony, the Beall family has played a prominent role in the social, political, and economic life of the state for three hundred fifty years.

Thomas and Jane married in 1790. They lived in Iredell Co. for a time before moving to East Tennessee and finally to Fayette County, where they lived until their deaths. Together they had nine daughters. These daughters were the mothers of some of Fayette counties largest familys. They include the Robys, Johnsons, Hollingsworths, and Enis'. The oldest daughter, Jane married a Blaylock, possibly in North Carolina. Next was Matilda. She married Jobe Johnson, possibly a kinsman of Price Johnson. Rachel was the third daughter and she married Thomas G. Roby. Next was Amanda who married Grief Johnson, possibly a brother to Jobe. Then came Marellah. She married James Holliman. Then Elizabeth. She married William Enis (William was a Justice of the Peace who married John and Zilpha). Next was Zilpha who married John Hollingsworth. Then Martha Louise who married Samuel Hollingsworth, John's oldest son by his first marriage, and finally Syrena who married James M. Roby. Most of the Enis', Roby's and many of the Johnsons in our area came from these unions.

Thomas and Jane's descendants number in the multiple thousands and are to be found all over this country. I am constantly amazed at the people I meet that trace their ancestry to Thomas and Jane. Most of them were unknown to me as they were not in my line of research. They include those mentioned earlier plus, many Fowlers, McCalebs, Files and Studdards, among others. He and Jane are buried in the Old Hollingsworth Cemetery on Ford's mountain.....lew

WAKE UP CALL

Being somewhat of a sleepy head, I often wondered how farmers could get up so early each morning and get started. I found out how after spending the night with Uncle Leonard and Aunt Mag in the dead of winter. I remember getting up the next morning and walking out on the porch to wash my face in the wash pan that had ice crystals floating in it...HELLO! If you think that wouldn't change your perception of the world ..cuz, ..think again .....just remembering .....lew

Southern English

"Y'all" is singular. "All y'all" is plural. "All y'all's" is plural possessive.

The Hollingsworth Cemetery

The Old Hollingsworth Cemetery on Ford's Mountain has not been maintained for a number of years. As a result of this negligence, the cemetery has grown over with trees and brush. Cemeteries are memorials to our beloved ancestors to whom we all owe a tremendous debt of gratitude. In 1990 there were 16 graves with markers in the cemetery. I suspect that John's first wife, Matilda White Hollingsworth, was the first one buried there. She died in childbirth in 1825, leaving John with six small children to raise. Certainly there are many without markers. I am certain that in addition to the Hollingsworth family, Daniel Ford, for whom the mountain was named, and his wife Elizabeth are buried there. Probably several of the children of Jim and Phoebe Hollingsworth McCaleb are buried there and of course Thomas and Jane Galloway and John and Zilpha Hollingsworth and several of their children and grandchildren are buried there. They are certainly entitled to rest in peace and for their memorial to remain intact and maintained. How about it folks? Let's have a cleanup day and make this old cemetery one that those who have gone before would be proud of and one we will be proud of also. We can either raise the necessary funds to hire the job done or have a group of volunteers get together and do the job. Please let us have your thoughts.....

Below is a listing of those graves with markers as late as 1990.....lew

Leah Catherine McCollum McCaleb

Leah Catherine was the second daughter of James K. and Sarah McCollum. She and Andrew McCaleb had four daughters that married Hollingsworths. The McCalebs and Hollingsworths became two of Fayette County's largest families. Fred McCaleb calls Leah the "Mother of Mothers" as her offspring produced these large families. She was also a devout member of the church of Christ and supported Andrew in his work. Her many descendants that are named "Leah" attest to her goodness and spirit. Her mother, Sarah Carter McCollum was a devout member of the Primitive Baptist Church. She is listed on the early rolls of the Old Union Primitive Baptist Church. Her Father, James K. McCollum, was a prominent planter and politician. He served two terms in the state legislature, representing Fayette County. The following is quoted from "Newman McCollum of Fayette County Alabama" It was written by Fred McCaleb .....lew Leah Catherine McCollum was born 25 April 1821 in Chester county, South Carolina, the second child of James K. and Sarah (Carter) McCollum. Her maternal grandparents were Churchill and Leah Carter, and paternal grandparents were Newman and Elizabeth (Guise) McCollum. Her Carter grandparents had died the year preceding her birth.

Leah Catherine's grandmother Elizabeth (Guise) McCollum, insofar as is known, died not long after the birth of Leah Catherine's Uncle Joseph. However, her great grandmother Ann McCollum, widow, of Scotch-Irish immigrant Henry McCollum (MaCallon), made her home with son Newman McCollum and grandson Joseph McCollum during the last decades of her more than ninety years of life, Thus Leah Catherine heard her great grandmother tell more than once the story of how Henry McCollum had sailed from Belfast, Ireland on the ship "Prince Qf Wales" to claim his Protestant Bounty land in South Carolina in 1767.

Leah Catherine was age three when the four generation group of the closely-knit McCollum family began their journey from Chester county, South Carolina to Fayette county, Alabama to settle on new land. Her uncle Henry McCollum and young family chose to remain in Chester county near his wife "Annie" (Wilkes) people. It is believed that he hoped to migrate to Alabama and join his kin at a later date,

The caravan of travellers consisted of great grandmother Ann; her son Newman; her grandson James K. and wife Sarah (Carter) and children Nancy Caroline, Leah Catherine, and Newman Theodore (all under age four); grandson Joseph; and her granddaughter Elizabeth. The latter two were as yet unmarried. It is believed that two orphaned children of Newman's older brother James may have accompanied them

The Oldest McCaleb

Exie Irene McCaleb Cayson will be 105 years of age on August 18, 2002. That she is the oldest McCaleb descendant is beyond any question. She is the fifth child of John William Houston and Emma Elmore McCaleb. She married Mannie Cayson and together they had ten children, four of whom are still living. Her siblings were Lula Maude, married Robert Walker, Maggie, married James Luther Phillips, Mary Ethel, married Leon "Boss" Tucker, Andrew Claude, married Willie Lee Scrugs, Clyde Jackson, married Euna Brasher, Cleburn Tyler, married Florence Hollingsworth, and Susie. She has outlived them all. She has lived in three centuries. This is an amazing feat.

She is a big fan of the Atlanta Braves baseball team and her favorite player is Chipper Jones. Exie lives at Traceway Retirement Community in Tupelo, Mississippi. She always looks good, dresses well and is a joy to be around. She reads her bible everyday. Her health is good and her mind is sharp. Drop her a line or send a card or better still go by for a visit. She will be glad to hear from you.....

William Pickens Anthony

A "passed down" incident the family was directly involved in during the Civil War was when a group of soldiers or Home Guards came by foraging for food. The family had a considerable amount of meat in a corner of the kitchen, either freshly slaughtered or cured. Knowing that the meat would be taken one of the children had the foresight to throw some clothing over the meat. This strategy worked in that the foragers thought it was just a pile of clothing gathered for washing later. Foy Anthony

William Pickens was a brother to Martha "Patsy" Anthony who married Archibald Whitehead, Jr.. Another sister, Mary Jane Anthony, married Archibald, Jr.'s brother, Drury Henry Cox Whitehead. Mary Jane was your editor's great grandmother. We will have articles on the descendants of William and Mary "Polly" Logan Anthony in future issues. .... lew

MY SOUTH

I am always amused by Hollywood's interpretation of the South. We are still, on occasion, depicted as a collective group of sweaty, stupid, backwards-minded and racist rednecks. The South of movies and TV, the Hollywood South, and the northern newspaper's South is not my South.

This is my South:

- a. My South is full of honest, hard-working people.
- b. My South is colorblind. In my South, we don't put a premium on pigment. No one cares whether you are black, white, red or green with orange polka dots as long as you carry your load..
- c. My South is the birthplace of blues and jazz, and rock n' roll. It has banjo pickers and fiddle players, but it also has B.B. King, Muddy Waters, the Allman Brothers, Emmylou Harris, and Elvis.
- d. My South is hot.
- e. My South smells of newly mowed grass.
- f. In my South we believe that the United States of America is the greatest country in the world...ever, and Y'all better believe it.
- g. My South was creek swimming, cane-pole fishing, and bird hunting.
- h. In my South, football is king, and the Southeastern Conference is the kingdom.
- i. My South is home to the most beautiful women on the planet.
- j. In my South, soul food and country cooking are the same thing.
- k. My South is full of fig preserves, cornbread, butter beans, fried chicken, and catfish.
- l. In my South we breakfast on biscuits, country ham, red eye gravy and grits.
- m. In my South we are not ashamed to express our belief in God and get a lump in our throat when we hear the Star Spangled Banner or God Bless America.
- n. In my South, grandmothers cook a big lunch every Sunday.
- o. In my South, family matters, deeply.
- p. My South is boiled shrimp, blackberry cobbler, peach ice cream, banana pudding, and oatmeal cream pies.
- q. In my South people put peanuts in bottles of Coca Cola and hot sauce on almost everything else.
- r. In my South the tea is iced and almost as sweet as the women.
- s. My South has air-conditioning.
- t. My South is camellias, azaleas, wisteria, and hydrangeas.
- u. In my South, the only person that has to sit on the back of the bus is the last person who got on the bus.
- v. In my South, people still say "yes, ma'am," "no ma'am," "please," and "thank you."
- w. In my South we are proud of our heritage and will be more than happy to explain it to anyone that will listen.
- x. In my South, we all wear shoes ... most of the time.

My South is the best-kept secret in the country. Please continue to keep the secret....it keeps the idiots away.....adapted and edited by lew

SENIORS

As a senior citizen was driving down the freeway, his car phone rang. Answering, he heard his wife's voice urgently warning him, "Herman, I just heard on the news that there's a car going the wrong way on I-20. Please be careful!" "Heck," said Herman, "It's not just one car. It's hundreds of them!"
